Now

With F.M.L.

I would like to enjoy the luxury of hate sometime, but I never find the self-inflicted damage, beside what it does to the other guy, worth the time.

NOW-NOW-NOW

All the pigeons losing their roosts to downtown urban renewal, particularly the dismantling of the old Hotel Cameron (Auditorium Hotel of yore), are confronting anyother problem.

Shotguns . . . in the hands of county officials and citizens trying to reduce their numbers before they, the pigeons, take over the top of the Courthouse, or as your Herald predicted a few issues ago, Ben Milam statue.

THANKSGIVING MORNING

Wayne Wieser, Charles Kunz and others, including a bird dog picking up fallen pigeons, were giving the birds a fair run of it. They were shooting the birds on the wing and the retreiver was bringing them in.

A few years ago, county officials went after smaller birds, perhaps sparrows, or blackbirds, which infested the trees around Courthouse Square. The same shotgun attack was employed and the birds which survived left.

Since the number of pigeons seems to increase as the numbers of old building roosts decrease, it will quite an open season until they are under control.

If we can't contain the numbers, we can always start another industry . . . a guana factory.

NOW-NOW-NOW

CRIME AND INFLATION

The combined meeting of Rotary and Noon and Evening Lions Wednesday heard Cong. W. R. Poage express concern over inflation and crime. About 125 men from Cameron, Rockdale, and other Cen-Tex towns, including State Sen. Bill Patman, of Ganado.

The Congressman, chairman of the U. S. House Committee on Agriculture, related productivity to earnings. He said he favors high wages if productivity is commensurate. He said the crux of current inflation in this country is the disparity of wages to productivity.

He would not make a direct connection between inflation and crime, but pointed out that crime undermines the very seat of any government and that it damages first and most the less privileged when anarchy in the streets occurs and when individuals and groups selectively disobey, or obey, certain laws.

Cong. Poage has represented the 11th District since 1937 and has been chairman of the Agriculture Committee by seniority since the mid-60s. He was introduced by Postmaster N. L. Caperton. MC of the annual Thanksgiving conclave of civic clubs was Gene Smitherman, Noon Lion president this year.

NOW-NOW-NOW

BASKETBALL . . .

Cameron is off to another basketball season. They opened with a win over a good Mexia team the other day.

November 30, tomorrow night, is a Tuesday night homegame, and not usually a night of big draw. The Yoemen play Belton, a club which we join in AAA competition in all sports and inter-scholastic activity next year.

By way of the new season and for something to do after a holiday weekend, let's join Dean Prokisch, Will Turner, Sam Ellison, Rock Thweatt, Stan Rosemond, Pat Scheguit, John Barron, Robert Aranda, David Hornung, Jack Chubb and Lonnie Scott at Yoe Gym.

They are a young, but potentially strong club.

THANKSGIVING SPEAKER -- Cong. W. R. Poage talks with Rockdale Postmaster Sam Peebles following the Congressman's address to 125 Milam civic and community leaders Wednesday at Methodist Fellowship Hall. Cong. Poage discussed "Crime and Inflation" in remarks to the annual Thanksgiving gathering. (See NOW, this edition.) --Staffoto

Patrolmen Report Accidents

Although traffic was heavy on Milam highways, accident reports were few, with no injuries reported at press-time. Local highway patrolmen investigated two one-car accidents.

Patrolman Milton Wright investigated a one car accident about 9 a.m. Wednesday when a car ran off Farm Road 845. The driver was unhurt.

A father and son escaped injury Thursday morning when their car left the road and rolled over, according to investigating Patrolman Leroy Broadus.

W. P. Skinner, driver of the car, of Clovis, New Mexico, said he fell asleep at the wheel about 6:30 a.m. Thursday a mile east of Buckholts on Highway 190. His son, Bill Skinner of Alburquerque, New Mexico, was asleep in the back seat.

Milam County REACT club was doing its part to promote highway safety by maintaining a rest stop on Highway 36. The stop opened at 6 p.m. Wednesday and by Friday evening, nearly 400 travelers had stopped for coffee, cold drinks, and cookies.

The stop was to stay open until Sunday midnight or longer if necessary. Drivers were very appreciative of the service, and said there were very few such stops along the way.

Hollas Studies Nuclear Energy In Australia

An interest in physical phenomena that started in Cameron school days has pyramided into a career for Charles Hollas who leaves this week for Australia and a three year research fellowship at the Australian National University.

Hollas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo P. Hollas of Cameron, graduated from Yoe High School in 1960, received a bachelor degree in physics from the University of Texas in 1966 and completed work on a Phd degree at UT last week.

Research fellowships are not a new experience for Hollas. Much of his study at the University of Texas has been with the help of scholarships and fellowships. His research for the past three years was supported by a special fellowship in nuclear science and engineering from the Atomic Energy Commission.

He also was selected to participate in a USAID sponsored seminar for physicists and physics professors from the United States and Central America held in El Salvador last year.

In Australia, Hollas will be continuing basic nuclear research that could eventually benefit his hometown (and the world) in the form of heat and electrical power. Hollas explained that he and other physicists are working towards a better understanding of the nuclear structure so that these forces can be turned to commercial energy.

"We know that we are fast using up our supply of gas and oil," Hollas said, "and nuclear energy will probably be the future answer to keeping our homes warm and our industries operating."

Nuclear generating plants are already a fact, but like the pollution caused by gas and oil effluent, nuclear power has brought problems in disposing of atomic waste.

Hollas said he hopes the research now in progress will result in answering some of these problems. He will be working along side 10 other physicists at the Australian University laboratory.

The fellowship in Australia begins January 1. In the meantime Hollas will pursue his interest in archeology along the western coast of South America, primarily in Peru and Chili. He will also make stops at Easter Island and Tahiti enroute to Australia.

Booster Club To Host Yoemen

The Yoeman Booster Club will host a barbecue at 7:30 p.m. Monday, November 29, at the KC Hall honoring members of the Yoe High football teams.

Alvis Coleman, president of the Booster Club, said members of the freshman, junior varsity and varsity teams and all Booster Club members are invited.

Party Plans Continue

Plans continue to take shape for the community Christmas party set for Saturday, December 4 at 6:30 p.m. on the lawn of the Cameron Public Library.

Musical features of the affair will include a barbershop quartet, the Yoe High Band, choirs from First United Methodist Church, First Baptist Church, Abiding Savior Lutheran Church, and Jerusalem Baptist Church. Also providing music will be a choir of fifth grade students directed by Mrs. Thomas Dusek. Solos will be offered by Mrs. Tommy Corley and Rev. Pete McCabe.

There will be several audience participation carols.

The party is sponsored by the Cameron Chamber of Commerce and most Christmas decorations usually erected by the Chamber will be centered in the area of the library. This will be done this year because of the downtown urban renewal program.

Bob Ellett, president of the Chamber, said "We especially want to thank the Citizens National Bank for erecting the large Christmas tree on the lawn of the library this year for the enjoyment of our community and those traveling through on the highway.

"Also, we appreciate each year the many hours the Texas Power and Light crew donates in erecting the decorations. Our Christmas party this year will be in a beautiful setting, thanks to many fine Cameron citizens."

Tornado Hits Near Rosebud

ROSEBUD

A tornado "twister" hit near Rosebud during a hard rain late in the afternoon of Nov. 17, tearing off an equipment shed roof on the Halunka farm, then skipped over and tore tin from the Hiles place, twisted the tops from some trees, then ripped off the roof and sides of a new equipment shed on the Zipperlen farm. The twister missed the eastern tip of Rosebud by about 500 yards.

Swedish Children View Donald Duck With Pity

By Stephen Croall
Reuter Correspondent

STOCKHOLM

Such studies -- analysis of pictures, their purpose and their effect -- were introduced into the state curriculum two years ago by Premier Olaf Palme, then the country's education minister.

The 15-year-olds, mainly girls, at Edsberg State Comprehensive School in Stockholm began their project last year. They chose the popular Disney character because "he is the number one media figure for children and therefore his values influence theirs," said the class teacher, Mrs. Britta Norvi.

She said 280,000 Donald Duck comics were sold in Sweden every two weeks. The annual work circulation of all Walt Disney comics stood at 250 million she said.

"The pupils did all the research themselves and came to their own conclusions. They went into this without knowing what they would find," Mrs. Norvi remarked.

What the children found resulted in a two-week exhibition at their school, which was shown on television. They now plan to write a letter of complaint to Walt Disney productions in the United States, because they think the publishers do not realize the effect of their comics.

"Almost every story revolves around money. It is made to appear by far the most important thing in life," said Carolina Andersson, one of the pupils.

"Uncle Scrooge, who has all the money, controls everyone's lives. Everyone obeys him. He bribes and blackmails people but he always has the law on his side," she added.

Another member of the class, Stefan Bergstroem, said Donald Duck was a middle class "Mr. Smith who everyone exploited. He is a prisoner. He is oppressed by Uncle Scrooge but he does not dare stand up to him because he is going to inherit all his money."

He said Uncle Scrooge -- who is called Joakim Von Anka in the Swedish comic version -- was a typical capitalist with mining interests in what resembled developing countries.

A third pupil, Claes-Goeran Danielsson, said the comic series projected materialistic and bigoted values.

Prominent in the exhibition was a strip from a recent comic showing Aunt Clara Duck with a shotgun glaring at two American Indians scampering across her broccoli patch.

She shouts, "There is a moment in everyone's life when one must stand up and defend what one has." before rushing over the patch shooting at the Indians.

"What is she defending? Her broccoli. But she runs across it herself, shooting a gun." said Claes-Goeran. "Her broccoli is worth more to her than two Indian lives."

The group was also upset by what it described as the constant protrayal of black people as primitive savages with thick white lips and grass skirts.

"Lots of Scandinavian children have never seek a real black man. But they read this and see Donald Duck being hurt by two blacks. They love Donald because they feel sorry for him, so how do they feel about blacks?" asked Claes-Goeran.

Have We The Courage?

Charles Beacham's quote in a letter to your Herald the other day still resounds:

"Today is the first day of the rest of my life."

Beacham, an attorney in San Antonio and former resident, was prompted by some meanderings of 112 in a recent edition.

His response suggests what has seemed obvious to some observers for some time.

People are looking for a new philosophical base, a new plane to deal with the new world we enter. It is a cumulative dissatisfaction with our responses to our problems. Remember that every great military or political or social upheaval first had a base in theory which people went out and proved.

The American people are more a part of the world than even our familiar "melting pot" origin. We are face to face with ideas of East and West closing from shores to midland.

In other words, the squeeze is on and new hope will derive from new approaches in new involvements.

Thus the wisdom of Beacham's quote: "Today is the first day of the rest of my life."

The question is: "Do we have the courage to live each day anew?"

WHAT OTHERS SAY ...

'Monsieur Silence'

Parisians are already calling him "Monsieur Silence."

He is a kind of antinoise ombudsman just appointed by the French Government to wage a nationwide fight against "sound pollution."

The man chosen for this job is young mining engineer Yves Martin, until now an official in the Ministry of Environment.

An antinoise bill will be introduced in parliament next spring. And Monsieur Silence will be responsible for seeing that the legislation is enforced.

The French reputedly are not good disciplinarians. But since car horns were banned in Paris some years ago, motorists have shown commendable discipline in obeying the ban, despite all the gloomy prognostics that it would never work.

If Monsieur Silence can eliminate unnecessary noise in other areas, he will be a popular man.

Switzerland Studies Move To Join United Nations

By Vergil Berger
Reuter Correspondent

BERNE, Switzerland The Swiss government plans to set up a special whether this neutral country should finally join the United Nations.

Switzerland has so far refrained from joining the world body as part of its policy of preserving strict political neutrality.

The new committee's task will include examining all aspects of Switzerland's relations with the United Nations.

Government officials said the nation's seven-member cabinet stated its intention to set up the consultative committee in a 100-page report on Swiss-U.N. relations over the past two years. The report will be presented to parliament early in December.

Although Switzerland has stayed out of the U.N., it is a member of several specialized U.N. agencies, including the International Labor Organization, the World Health Organization and the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

The U.N.'s European headquarters is in a swiss city -- Geneva -- as are the head offices of several of the world organization's agencies.

Switzerland's neutrality policy has prevented it from applying for full membership of the European Economic Community (E.E.C.), though it was a founder member of the more purely commercial European Free Trade Association (EFTA).

After exploratory talks earlier this year, Switzerland and the E.E.C. are soon to begin formal negotiations on special trading arrangements between them.

At the same cabinet meeting that approved the text of the U.N. report, the seven ministers unanimously agreed that Swiss relations with the E.E.C. should be given priority over the U.N. question.

The Swiss government has repeatedly stressed that the maintenance of the country's neutrality is a condition for entry into the U.N. But officials said the committee, expected to be large, would have a free hand otherwise.

The independent newspaper, Tribune de Geneve, which strongly supports Swiss entry into the United Nations said that if public opinion and Parliament approved, Switzerland would join the U.N. in a matter of months.

Informed sources here said the admission of China to the world organization had given new impetus to Swiss consideration of the matter.

With the entry into the U.N. of East and West Germany -- and possibly North and South Vietnam, and North Korea -- expected in the not too distant future, Switzerland could find itself one of the very few countries outside an increaslingly universal body, the sources said.

Like all major political decisions in Switzerland, a government move to enter the U.N. would have to be approved by a majority of voters in a national referendum.

Some commentators have suggested in Swiss newspapers that this country's neutrality, conceived in a European context and chiefly designed to protect Switzerland from wars during the past 100 years between its neighbors, especially France and Germany, might now be out of date.

They point to the undisputed fact that ideologically and economically Switzerland belongs to the west.

But the cabinet's insistence on preserving the neutrality policy clearly seems to enjoy the support of the vast majority of Swiss.

Neutrality was not questioned by any of the score of parties and political groupings ranging from right-wing conservatives to communists who contested last month's general election.

Alcoholism Programs

In the past, alcoholism has been considered mainly as a moral or criminal problem. In recent years, however, alcoholism and alcohol abuse have been recognized as a massive public and individual health problem.

Now programs are being planned and mounted to seek adequate solutions to this problem. To work with states, communities, and organizations concerned, the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism has been established by Act of Congress within the National Institute of Mental Health.

As the primary focal point for Federal activities in alcoholism, the new Institute (NIAAA) has projected two principal goals in its programs to reduce the enormous toll taken by alcoholism and alcohol abuse. The most immediate goal is to assist in making the best treatment and rehabilitation services available at the community level.

The longer range goal is to develop effective methods of preventing alcoholism and problem drinking. To achieve these objectives, the NIAAA fosters and carries on broad programs of research, training, public education, and development of community services. NIAAA is also collaborating with other Federal, state and local agencies to develop programs targeted at reducing and preventing alcohol-related problems in special population groups.

Drinking drivers are one of these groups and a major collaborative program is being aimed at reducing the number of deaths and injuries caused by drinking drivers.

Alcoholic employees number some 5 percent of the Nation's work force, but experience shows that more than 50 percent of these can be rehabilitated. The NIAAA, therefore, is actively encouraging employee alcoholism programs in cooperation with state and local governments and private industry. It also provides consultation and assistance to employers interested in developing such programs.

Another group of special concern is the chronic drunkenness offender. From this group come 40 percent of all arrests each year for non-traffic offenses. Handling this group within the criminal justice system has proved both costly and ineffective; and the NIAAA is working with agencies of the criminal justice system and others to find practical and effective alternatives to meeting problems posed by these drinkers.

China Painting As Art Form Is Club Program

The Pleasure and Profit Club met in the home of Mrs. E. J. Burkes for the November 18 meeting. After a brief business session conducted by the club president, Mrs. Virginia Schuhsler, Mrs. Paul Young introduced the program on "China Painting" presented by Mrs. J. E. Lafferty.

Mrs. Lafferty said she first became interested in china painting through a friend in Tyler, Texas while she and her husband pastored a church there.

She began to take china painting lessons when she first moved to Cameron, and she shared some of her own paintings with club members. These examples included paintings on doorpalates, pitchers, raised-paste china, hot plates, and a most unique pair of "owl cuff links".

Mrs. Lafferty told the group a few techniques of china painting, one of which concerned caution about some of the color results. She also gave suggestions she had received from some of her teachers, and she mentioned the relaxation that could be obtained from such handiwork. She concluded her program by painting on a beautifully etched, gold-trimmed platter that she had begun earlier.

Several club members brought "productions" to show. Among thoses shown were wooden wall plaques, an unusual-embroidered throw pillow, and a Santa created from three sizes of circles from red and white fabric.

Special guests for the meeting were Mrs. J. E. Lafferty and Mrs. Douglas Buck.

The next meeting will be a Christmas Party on December 9.

Youth Rush To 'Jeans' Bewilders Store Owners In East Germany

By Erdmute Behrendt
Reuter Correspondent

EAST BERLIN

American jeans, long regarded as status symbols by young East Berliners, have suddenly appeared in shops here -- with chaotic results.

This is the first time jeans have been on sale in the city and the rush to buy them has left shop assistants bewildered and exhausted.

A pair of the "recreation trousers" as they are called in East Germany, costs $15.

In one shop, boys and girls were seen industriously ransacking clothes racks crowded with jeans, which had not been placed in any size order.

To add to the confusion, when sizes were apparent, they were all marked in inches -- a measurement something of a mystery to East Germans who use the metric system.

The only shop assistant with a conversion table to the metric system was overwhelmed by a milling crowd of buyers.

The main youth center on East Berlin's Show Street, the Karl Marx Allee, opened a special department to sell a consignment of 20,000 pairs of jeans.

An assistant said the rush for the trousers was comparable only to the days when the first youth fashion centers opened in East Berlin in 1968.

American jeans have until now been worn mainly by East German youngsters with relatives or friends in the West who could send the jeans on.

Others would buy them at black market prices varying between $22.50 and $27.50.

However, some youngsters regret that anyone can now buy jeans freely. One student complained "What should one wear now to stick out from the masses of plebians?"

It appears all is not lost for the exclusive dresser -- the typical blue denim jeans are still not on sale here, only various colors of cord jeans.

Other newly arrived items luring fashion - conscious East Berliners to queue are Italian buckskin boots and West German see-through brassieres.

The rush for boots in one youth center was too much for the sales assistants. At one point they barred the entrance to their shoe department and allowed only a limited number of customers in at a time.

East Berlin is alive with rumors of more Western goods to come. Expectations include handbags, textiles and West German shoes.

Doors Of Yoe

By Marilyn Hauk

Hopefully everyone has recovered from the shock of the Powder Puff Football game last Monday night. It was a very colorful game after everyone had mud on their faces and the "flags" in their pockets began to run.

It was very lucky for the Yoe High morale that last week only had three days. Many of the tough football players weren't speaking to each other and if they were the words weren't sunshine and roses.

The Senior Class sold cupcakes at Activity Period last Tuesday. The tasty pastries were supposed to have been sold Monday night but they could not compete with the downpour.

The Thanksgiving holidays brought some old faces back to Yoe High. Tuesday and Wednesday Kathryn Kahler, Marion Thomas, Ann Arthur, and Clint Schofield walked down the halls of their old alma mater.

With the change of fall transforming into winter activities of our athletic department also change. Basketball season is now underway and our team needs your support!

Attention to teachers in Ben Milam: If you find an apple core and a banana peel in your wastebasket don't panic. Contact Randy Rumlinson and Alva Ray Mullinax and ask them about Junior Play practice.

Ned McElwrath, you are the envy of all the girls across the nation. With that beautiful hair and everything every modeling agency in the U.S. will be after you.

Hunting License Is 39,503 For Fall

Hunting license sales rolled along at a record pace as the deer and turkey seasons opened over most of Texas.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials reported a total of 290,621 resident hunting licenses were sold in September and October, compared to 288,874 for the first two months of the 1970-71 license year.

If the pace is maintained as expected, license sales will exceed last year's 780,659 resident licenses sold and their value of $2,341,759.

Sales of exempt licenses for hunters under 16 and over 65 also are running ahead of last year, as are non-resident license sales.

The fiscal year 1970-21 saw more than $2.6 million in revenue brought into the state's coffers from sales of the four major hunting licenses -- resident, non-resident, exempt and five-day migratory bird license.

Yoe Cagers Nip Robinson

By Marilyn Hauk

In the first game of the season the Yoemen downed Robinson 65-68. Robinson held the lead the first half of the game but the Yoemen made a comeback in the third quarter.

Jackie Chubb was high scorer for the Yoemen with a total of 21 points. John Bairon was a close second with 20 points.

Also scoring were Will Turner with 8 points; Dean Prokish with 8 points; Pat Schiguit with 4 points; and Rock Thweatt with 4 points.

Robinson had the high scorer for the game. Selby scored a total of 23 points. Other scorers for Robinson were Viflafana with 12 points; Washington with 13 points; Mullins with 8 points; and Rasner and Tucker with 1 point each.

Score by quarters:

	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	Final
Yoe	5	20	20	20	65
Robinson	13	16	13	16	58

LIONS GOING

As few as 4,000 mountain lions remain in the United States, the National Geographic Society says.

CRUMPLED WRECKAGE is all that remains of this 1970 Mercury which went off the road and rolled near Buckholts Thursday morning. Occupants of the car, W. P. Skinner and son Bill Skinner of New Mexico, were unhurt.

BUSINESS REVIEW

Schillers - 58 Years Service

No one can remember a time when there was no pharmacy at 106 S. Houston, where E. O. Schiller Pharmacy is located.

Since 1885, a drug store or pharmacy, 58 of those years Schiller's, has dispensed reliable service and first-line products at this location.

Today, E. O. Schiller Pharmacy is a two-pharmacist drug, gift and notion center, its wares modern amidst a modern lighted building and antique shelving.

E. O. Schiller, Jr., operates the well stocked center for professional pharmacy and services bearing both his and his father's name, who assists in the daily operation.

Since remodeling in 1962 exclusive lines in cosmetics for men and women and fragrances for women at Schiller's now include Helena Rubenstein, Faberge and English Leather.

The list of brand-name items for home and family use is endless along Schiller shelves. Reliability and value are first considerations on any item stocked at Schiller's.

Both Schillers produce prescriptions to doctors' requirements.

And this Schiller Pharmacy is a family store which serves needs of each member of your family in a tradition that continues with pride.

BRIGHT IDEAS

by Sylvan Lumiere, GTE Sylvania Lighting and Design Coordinator

Dining with Imagination

There's nothing as romantic or lovely as dining by candlelight. But unfortunately it can be a darkening experience, since people rarely use enough candles to allow diners to enjoy the food, table setting or each other.

Dining rooms automatically lend themselves to imaginative lighting because high lighting levels are usually not needed. And you can create the effect of candlelight by artfully using two or four candles on the table supplemented with subtle lighting. The trick is to get the effect of lighting without obviously revealing the source.

The chandelier is the traditional source of general illumination in dining areas. It also adds to the focal importance of the table. The base of the chandelier should be 30 inches to 36 inches above the table top, depending on the size of the fixture and the ceiling height. Originally a chandelier meant a candlestick with several branches, and to retain its true character, small flame-like bulbs such as Sylvania's Decor Lites should be used.

To cut down on glare, there should be additional incandescent illumination on the walls. General room lighting must be built up to a level where the contrast between the chandelier lights and other lighting is not objectionable.

Lighting can make your dining experiences more enjoyable, and there's no need to fear losing the charm of candlelight. Subtle lighting will only enhance the setting and add to the charm.

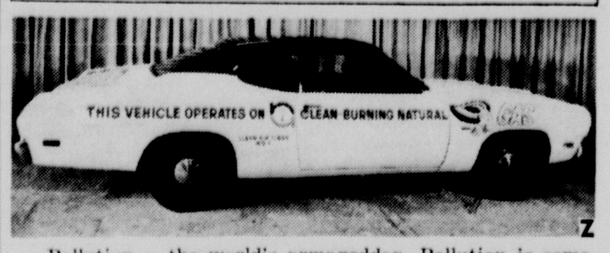
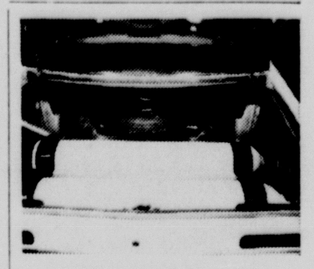
One Solution For A Big Problem



Pollution — the world's armageddon. Pollution is something we would like the answers to now, and some of the problems are being solved. But many of the most important answers lie in the future.

The current concern of many Americans is automobile pollution. The transportation industry accounts for 42 percent of all air pollutants. There have been several solutions offered, but which one is right for the time.

The latest answer to automobile pollution is the natural gas-powered car. The car operates on a dual-fuel system enabling the driver to use natural gas power in city driving and gasoline for open highway driving. Under the stop-and-go conditions of city driving, natural gas gives better mileage than gasoline. Daily testing of the dual-fuel system under a broad range of temperature extremes —from 100°F. in mid-summer to 40°F. below zero in the dead of winter — is currently being conducted by the Canadian Western Natural Gas Company, Limited and Northwestern Utilities, Limited, both subsidiaries of Philadelphia-based International Utilities Corporation. The dual-fuel system could be the answer many people are looking for.



The benefits of a natural gas-powered car begin with a 99 per cent reduction in carbon monoxide and a 90 per cent cut in nitrogen oxide. Spark plugs and engines have a longer life and require less maintenance. Mufflers and tailpipes fare better. And natural gas has the economic advantage of lower fuel consumption.

Currently, the dual-fuel system is only being used by fleet operators such as urban transportation systems, taxi companies, police and fire departments, and delivery vehicles. But, who knows — natural gas-powered cars may be the answer for all tomorrow.

Ideas Offered To Add Room

As families grow larger, it soon becomes apparent the only housing solution, short of moving, is to add more room to the house. The problem usually is deciding where and how, and then getting started.

Five architect-designed add-a-room projects show how to gain living space with a loft room, master bedroom, garage conversion, over-the-garage room, and a learning center.

For a copy of the booklet "We Need More Room" send 25 cents in coin to Western Wood Products Assn., Dept. 526-P, Yeon Bldg., Portland, Or. 97204.

Wood Decking Aids Ceiling

Ceiling treatment of wood decking combines one easy application of roof, insulation and ceiling while covering the room with the warmth and beauty of natural wood.

Solid or laminated decking, with V-groove or channel patterns, adds visual interest and patterns to ceilings. Solid or laminated beams of Douglas fir or western pine add to the mood of stability.

Vertically laminated beams also produce interesting architectural effects and add strength as deck or cantilevered balcony supports.

That's also where you left your keys.

It happens thousands of times a day. Last year over 900,000 cars were stolen. More than half were stolen by kids under 18. And too many people made the thefts easy by leaving their keys in the ignition.

This problem is growing every year. We, as new car dealers, are concerned about the loss of property. And we are even more concerned about the kids who take a car. Just for the fun of it.

So we are asking your help. Please remember—take your keys when you leave your car. If your keys aren't there, it's far more likely that your car will be.

Decks Offer Fun For All

It can be a place to entertain, either formally or with a casual barbecue party, or just enjoying a quiet cup of coffee with visitors.

For children, a deck can be an outdoor playroom where there are no walls to smudge and no mud to dirty their feet.

Teenagers find a deck useful for impromptu parties or rap sessions, especially if there's a swimming pool adjacent and a firepit or barbecue.

A good deck incorporates privacy screens and sun shades where needed. Deck furniture, a necessity, can be combined with railings as sturdy benches.

Whether part of the original house plan or added later, a deck should be designed to relate its appearance to the house and garden, and its functions to the needs of the family.

The best response to abusive calls: hang up.

Obscene Phone Call? Just Hang Up, Advises Co.

The phone rings. You answer and the caller's language is abusive, obscene, or threatening. What do you do?

"Hang up," says Dennis Richter, Manager for Southwestern Bell here. "Use the phone on your own terms. Don't talk to anyone you don't want to, whether they're selling something, seeking information, playing a prank or mouthing obscenities. Don't give them an audience and they're not likely to call back."

Richter said the phone company has other suggestions on how to fight annoying calls:

1. Make callers identify themselves. When someone asks, "Who is this?" don't tell them unless you recognize the voice or until he identifies himself.

2. Don't answer any questions from a strange voice that you wouldn't answer in a face-to-face meeting with a stranger on the street.

3. If the caller remains silent, hang up. Some abusive callers want to listen, just to see what you'll do.

4. Hang up at the first indication of an obscene or suggestive remark. The caller would like nothing better than for you to respond to his comments.

5. Hang up if you're not interested in a product or service being sold by telephone and the caller persists despite your disinterest.

When these techniques are unsuccessful in stopping annoying calls, call the telephone company business office or operator, Richter said.

"And where a threat is involved," he continued, "such as a call threatening injury to person or property kidnap or robbery, call the police and the telephone company immediately. There are laws against abusive calling, and we have methods of tracing these calls to their source."

The law makes it a misdemeanor to use profane, vulgar or indecent language, threats, harassment or enticement by use of the telephone. Conviction carries a fine from $100 to $1,000, one to twelve months in jail, or both.

Richter said experience has shown that annoying calls come from almost anyone -- not just from strangers, but sometimes from close acquaintances, neighbors or fellow workers.

"But they don't come often from that source. Many come from a relatively small group of people -- unsupervised youngsters, misguided or frustrated people and sometimes from the mentally ill. Hang up, and you've denied them what they want -- an audience," he concluded.

LBJ School Helps UT Administrators

The Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs at The University of Texas this fall is helping state administrators keep abreast of emerging issues in public policy and administraton.

About 90 state executives from a variety of agencies are participating in an eight-session professional development program.

The short course, arranged at the request of the Office of the Governor, is covering diverse topics ranging from policy uses of the social sciences to environmental influences on public policy issues.

Farmers Union Sets Policy Statement

A 17-member Program Committee has completed its work on a draft of the 1972 Policy Statement for Texas Farmers Union.

The Committee, meeting in Waco last week, wrote into the program some of the key issues which will be debated at the state convention in San Antonio December 6-8.

Some of the principal resolutions which are expected to spark debate on the floor of the convention include the farm organization's position on state taxation, Farmers Union's support for commodity checkoff programs to support research and promotion, limitations on federal farm payments, state regulations of utilities, and the administration of the 1971 Farm Act.

The farmers will also take a look at anti-pollution legislation and programs to bring out-of-state water into Texas
